Lindstedt:

The Treat of Westphalia was signed in 1648—and not 1649 as you purport—, and the United States of America is not a signatory to the same insofar as it was created nearly a century and a half before the USA came into existence.

What are you next going to do? Use the Uniform Commercial Code as a legal authority? Cite to the fictitious 1787 treaty between the USA and the Barbary Pirates when making a legal argument? Claim that “Martin Lindstedt” is an unregistered corporation and the Ohio state and federal courts don’t have jurisdiction over a “corporation” like you because you are a “sovereign citizen”?

You should just give Bryan Reo what he is owed and call it quits. He decisively won and you horrifically lost. You keep digging yourself a hole, and you will only drag others—like your dear sister—down with you. Do you want to make your sister destitute, too?

We all end up where we deserve in life. You possessing millions of dollars worth of land despite you being a deranged lunatic who spent time in a mental institution in relation to you allegedly sodomizing your step-grandson is offensive to the Cosmos. (You being with Roxie is probably appropriate, though. You deserve an intelligent supermodel like her to be your significant other.)

If you truly believe that Reo is an “agent of ZOG,” then you should just surrender now, for you would have no chance against his people who are in the top echelons of society. Reo always wins. Always. He will do to you what Rome did to Carthage.

Cordially,
Kyle Bristow
