Exhibit #4

I Am Being Followed/Observed

On my back from the vet's office today, where I had to go to take my cat, on the road I always take back, there was a white car (I believe it was 2 doors) waiting on the side of the road, half in the dirt, with the right turn signal on.

My first thought was that it was a carjacker trying to get me to stop in my lane or slow down at which time I would be attacked. Because of this initial thought of mine, I checked the other lane for oncoming traffic, and when I saw there was none, I activated my signal and flew by the car using the other lane.

I then signalled back to move into the proper lane, which I did, at which time the car immediately pulled fully back onto the road, right behind me, and began moving.

I continued on at my normal speed, and at the next turn, I made the turn I would normally make to go home, a right turn. However at the next intersection I did something different, I turned left and began to head the wrong way for going home, I then made the first right-hand turn that was possible.

The car behind me made the left turn to follow me down the road into a residential area, and then when I made a right turn into a residential development, and came to a stop in the entrance of the development, the car turned into a development entrance that was on the left, made a fast and hard U-turn, and then sped away.

I was ready for trouble, if it came... However, when I tried to call my dad to tell him about the incident, I noticed my cellphone wasn't working. For that matter it hasn't been working at all today.

I then drove around for a few more minutes, made my way through the development, exited the development through the other side, made a few more wrong turns, looped around, then I went home after I confirmed nobody was following me. When I got home I called my dad (on the home phone) and told him that something very fishy was going on, my cell-phone was not working, people were following me, and I advised him to consider that it was RED LIST day, and that he should come straight home. I then started laying out rifles and I put on my tactical armor, in the event that the following was a prelude to some sort of gang attack, ATF assault, or any other NWO goon squad attack.

Has anybody else ever had these sorts of situations?

Re: I Am Being Followed/Observed

It's happened to me quite a few times.

Could you describe the vehicle in further detail?

Sounds like he was lost, and your cell phone needs new batteries. Or a bill paid.

I would put away the tac armor and weaponry for now.

I think that it's great that you start preparing to defend yourself with deadly force in the event of an ATF assault.

You're not doing anything illegal that might lead to you getting followed are you?

I didn't get a close enough look at the vehicle, it was a white two-door car, it looked to be American made.

As for my cellphone, the battery is fully charged and the bill is fully paid. I was using it yesterday...

No, I'm not doing anything illegal, but a few days ago the FBI called me, they didn't like the answers I gave them, so I believe this is their way of letting me know that they care.

That's pretty creepy. Are you a known WN? To the govt or what have you. I thought I was being followed recently twice in the last couple of weeks, but I might just be paranoid, it wasn't like your situation.

A few years ago, I called a police department to ask them about their state gun laws and their city guns laws. I intended to go to a rally and I was too young for concealed carry, so I wanted to open carry a long-gun, and I asked the police sergeant if I could, under the laws of their state and city, openly carry an SAR-1, because of recent antifa actions and the lack of any real police protection. They told me I could NOT carry a long-gun in any fashion under the laws of their state and city.

I thought that was the end of that...

About two days later the FBI came to my house, they left a card on the door, and so I called them... They wanted to meet with me, so we met and talked. I confirmed that I was NOT planning on mowing down a crowd of people, and I basically suggested that they should focus their efforts on real threats, and I proceeded to tell them about an Arab I know, who is a dual citizen with an unfriendly nation, who has no job, is qualified as a pilot, always has tens of thousands of dollars, and who flies odd cargo shipments for his brother on a few hours notice, to and from places such as Syria, Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Romania, etc. I suggested that the person is probably involved in smugglings drugs and or guns, and with his ties to the Syrian government he is probably involved in funneling money towards terrorism. I thought I was doing a service to the nation, providing information about somebody who is likely a radical Muslim out for infidel blood...

However, they didn't seem to care much about that...

Every few months they call me up and ask me to give them information on right-wing patriots, to which I say, "I don't associate with anybody who breaks the law or conspires to break the law, sorry, I can't help you with that... However, I do have some information on insert various marxists, border jumpers, etc if you're interested" and almost always they either feign interest or they just shrug it off.

A few days ago they called me and asked me if I knew of any right-wingers planning to take out Obama. I repeated what I've said the last X amount of times. "I don't associate with people who break the law or who conspire to break the law... Furthermore, I don't believe anybody in any white patriot organization would harm Obama, if he was harmed it would be used as an excuse to crack down on white activists. Personally I would prefer to see him alive and well, so that he can show the world how much of a screw-up he is by ruining this country further and making it painfully obvious how unqualified he was and is. We're also aware that if anything were to happen to him, we'd take the blame over it... But as to your original question, I have no idea of who would want to hurt him, if somebody does want to hurt him, it's probably somebody on the other side who wants to blame us."

They then asked me if I be okay accepting money in exchange for infiltrating a white organization to ferret/flush out white activists. They said they would pay me (they didn't name a figure) and they would pick an organization. I simply said, "I'm sorry, I can't help you with that, I don't know anybody who breaks the law or who conspires to break the law."

As I'm pretty sure they already know my membership in the CofCC (I'd assume they occasionally scan my mail), I said to them, "I'm a member of the Council of Conservative Citizens, it's not an organization for terrorists or for people who plan on blowing things up, so there's nothing I can say except that I don't associate with people who plan on breaking the law."

They then said something along the lines of, "Well we'd like you to start associating with those sort of people, we'll pay you to do so... We want to put you in place in an organization, we'll pay you for your services, and you get us information on who is planning what."

I then said, "I can't help you there, sorry, I can't do that."

My basic reply never changes, when they ask me if I've "heard anything lately" I simply say, "I don't associate with people who violate the law or who plan on violating the law."

The ATF probably has a file on me that's a mile wide. I've called them countless times, trying to ask about importation paperwork and the process to get items X, Y, and Z, and they always say "we'll check into that and get back to you" but they never get back to me.

My latest unanswered question was whether or not a single grenade counts as a class III weapon, with each grenade requiring a $200 dollar tax stamp payment. I asked them, "what is the easiest legal way for me to get an M203 grenade launcher and a box of grenades. I know the launcher has to be papered with a tax stamp payment, but does each grenade have to be? I don't want to pay $200 dollars per grenade, so what can I do to get around that?"

One of them said, "hmmm, that's a real good question, I don't know... It might be that each grenade requires the payment, might not be... I'll look into that..."

That was the winter of 2007...

I'm still waiting for them to call me back...
